Everything's fine, just some of the instructions to the tasks could have been more clear.

It was fine for an online seminar. Probably, offline seminar would have done better.

By having the seminar off-line

Given the current circumstances, there is little more to be done; the move of these events online has worked as well as expected.

We, the seminar participants from the partner universities, did our hometasks within our own small teams, and there was not the slightest idea of how the webinars will bring us closer to cooperation and to understanding how the actual reports on the MultiEd programme should look like. We truly appreciate the work of the seminar hosts and reporters, but it seems that the seminar did not bring us closer to anything related to the project completion and implementation.

More time to discuss and share practical experience of the participants of the project

The event was professionally rewarding. Everything was OK.
